Staggering Need For Hospital Beds Is Told

(Continued from page 1-A) to finance and build enough hospitals to raise the ratio beyond 4.6 beds per thousand by 1950. The program, if followed until 1970, he said, would give the county a required average of 5.6 beds per thousand.

The survey recommendations for 1950 include the building of five urban hospitals of 400 or more beds, 19 new community hospitals of 200 to 300 beds and two new teaching centers of up to 800 beds, a total of 4823 beds in new hospitals and 3213 beds added to existing hospitals.

Hamilton estimated that current construction costs, which he believed to be peak prices, are $7000 a bed for additions to existing hospitals and $12,000 a bed for new hospital construction.

The building program for 1950-1970, which is based upon an estimated 1970 county population of 6,200,000, includes the construction of 33 new community hospitals with a total of 8,874 beds and 10,551 beds to be installed as additions to existing hospitals of 1950.

The report urged the discontinuance of government hospitals for the use solely of indigent patients, suggested that charity cases should also be cared for in community general hospitals with the government footing the bill. It also advised that paying patients be admitted to government operated hospitals.

Hamilton also urged that children's hospitals and other such highly specialized institutions be operated only in close relationship with medical teaching centers. In addition to formulating a building program which he hoped could be carried out in 1950, Hamilton also presented a priority system under which county areas, most in need, would be the first to get new hospitals under the building program.

The complete program envisages the division of the entire county into 20 areas, roughly following established geographical and trading areas, with at least one urban medical center available to each district, where more highly specialized services and equipment will be available than in the smaller surrounding community general hospitals.

Letters to Editor

Editor Torrance Herald: Through your "Letters to the Editor" column I wish to thank whoever sent my lost wallet back to me through the mails. The $27 that didn't return with it meant a milk bill, a pair of shoes for my boy and a much needed tire for my car that takes me back and forth to the job by which I support a boy, a girl and myself. Thank you, Doris K. Allen 2669 Carson

April 23, 1947 Editor Torrance Herald: Your admirable article: "Open Up That Door" was timely and of interest to myself, as is everything pertaining to Torrance. Therefore I took it upon myself to investigate records in office of County Auditor, the result being:

Taxes for District No. 1, current year to December 5, 1946: $128,107.39; Dec. 6 to March 31, 1947, $6,848.23. Total $134,955.62. District No. 2, same to December 5, $86,616.82; December 6 to March 31, $5,021.58. Total $91,638.40. Total collected and paid, $226,088.02.

This may be known to you, and as it is of public interest, the records are open to all citizens. Wm. A. Drennan, 418 S. Spring St., Los Angeles.

April 25, 1947 Editor Torrance Herald: Enclosed find a check for six months subscription. I missed your paper in the mail yesterday. I like the stand you take concerning the College and Alondra park. The college would mean so much to this part of the county.

North Torrance seems to be "a forgotten land." The mail comes through Gardena as it did 40 years ago. Maybe some day it will be discovered. Herc's hoping. Violet Williams, 17815 Crenshaw Blvd.

April 29, 1947 Editor Torrance Herald: On the part of the merchants of Torrance, I want to take this opportunity to thank you and the Torrance Herald for the splendid cooperation and assistance in making Dollar Days in Torrance such an outstanding success. Sincerely, George Noonan, president Merchants Division of the Torrance Chamber of Commerce.
